Introduction

In 1997, the Legislature passed SB 124, which separated behested payments from the definition of “contributions” under the Political Reform Act (Act) and required those payments to be reported if certain conditions and thresholds were met. Although this meant that contribution limits no longer applied to behested payments, the reporting requirement provided transparency to the public about the movement of this money between parties.

As technology and technological capability advanced, the Fair Political Practices Commission (FPPC) took steps to make this information more accessible to the public by compiling behested payment report data for state officials on its website. Currently, this data is available online for reports filed from 2011 to the present. The full data set is available on the Commission’s website at <https://fppc.ca.gov/transparency/behested-payments.html>.

This report aims to synthesize and organize some of that data to provide a more digestible picture of behested payment activity and further increase transparency while showing the ever-increasing use of and amounts of behested payments as part of the political landscape.

Background

Under the Political Reform Act, an elected official who fundraises or otherwise solicits payments from one individual or organization to be given to another individual or organization may be required to report the payment. Generally, a payment is considered “behested” and subject to reporting if all of the following apply:

- It is made at the request, suggestion, or solicitation of, or made in cooperation, consultation, coordination, or concert with the public official.
- It is made for a legislative, governmental, or charitable purpose.
- It does not qualify as a gift (made for personal purposes), or a contribution (made for election-related activity) to the elected official.

While the Act limits the amount of gifts and campaign contributions that an official may receive, there are no limits on behested payments. However, if behested payments from a single source total $5,000 or more in a calendar year, those payments must be reported.

Once behested payments from a single source reach $5,000 or more in a calendar year, the official must report those payments within 30 days. If the total behested payments from a single source do not reach $5,000, no reporting is required.

The purpose of the Act and mission of the FPPC compels a corresponding increase in transparency for the public to see the behests, as well as accountability for those making them.

In 2021, the Commission pro-actively studied various issues raised and approved new regulations to accomplish these goals. Elected officials must now report the name of the person directing a reportable behested payment through a donor-advised fund. Officials must disclose when reporting a behested payment to a nonprofit any relationship the official, member of their staff, or immediate family member has with the nonprofit. Officials also must disclose if the person making the reportable behested payment is involved in a proceeding before the official's agency. Lastly, officials may now estimate the money raised for a nonprofit and report it within 30 days if no actual amount is available in that time frame.
